DETAILED ACTION

Rejections Repeated

1. The 35 U.S.C. 103(a) rejection of claims 2-6,8-11,21-23 unpatentable over Beauquin in view of Boehmer et al. has been repeated for the reasons previously made in office action 9/7/2005.

Response to Arguments

2. Applicant's arguments filed 12/6/2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

In response to applicant's argument that Boehmer et al. fail to disclose a teaching wherein the expanded foam material described therein can be used as a thermal and/acoustic insulation, therefore there is no motivation to use the material in place of the aerogel of Beauquin, the expanded foam material taught by Boehmer et al. is inherently an insulative material and further is known in the art to have variety of uses besides packaging. U.S. Patent 5705536, used here to merely support examiner's argument, teaches that it is well known in the art that biologically degradable polymer foam is known to have varied uses in among other things, such as packaging, thermal insulation, acoustic insulation, construction and many fields of use of daily life (col. 1 liens 14-16). Thus, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to provide Beauquin whose invention is directed to thermal and acoustic insulation with the biologically degradable polymer foam taught by Boehmer et al. whose invention is directed to packaging for the purpose of providing a foam that retains its shape and compressibility under non-wetted conditions but disintegrates when subjected to continuous water (Boehmer et al. col. 2 lines 45-49). Also since U.S. patent '536 supports the motivation of using biologically degradable polymer foam not only in packaging but also for acoustic insulation, it would also have been obvious to provide Beauquin with the biologically degradable polymer foam taught by Boehmer et al.

In response to applicant argument that Boehmer et al. has no suggest that the expanded foam material has a thermal conductivity ranging between 0.03 and 0.06 WmK, since Boehmer et al. discloses that the vegetable foam particles comprises of flour, plasticizer and a water content below 10% as desired by the applicant, it is inherent that the vegetable foam disclosed by Boehmer et al. has a thermal conductivity ranging between 0.03 and 0.06.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
